Not illustrated. 1918 Excerpt: .created by war conditions--the rural motor truck and interurbaii express routes. All over the Country motor trucks are beginning to operate on regular schedule over specified routes with the result that they are speeding up transportation of merchandise; relieving the burden of railroad and express companies; assisting the consignees by making deliveries directly to their place of business and operating with greater economy, because of the rapidity of truck transportation, than the railroads or express companies. This advancement is as worthy of the close cooperation of shippers now as the U. S. Merchant Marine will be after the war is won.--L0ng Island Breeze. Advertising creates momentum. If this momentum is permitted to diminish and finally to cease altogether, then sales effort must be redoubled in order to accomplish the same result that half the work might have produced if directed by a smattering of gray matter. VVe d never get to Berlin if bayonets didn t follow bullets. You ll never reap much of a sales harvest if fertilization isn t followed by ciiltivation.--Lilu-rtly Bell. When a plumber makes a mistake, he charges time for it. When a lawyer makes a niistake, it s just what he wanted. lVhen a carpenter makes a mistake, it s just what he expected, because the Clilinqcg are ten to one he never learned his hi5ine55 When an electrician makes a rnistgkgy he blames it on induction, because nobody knows what that is.
