Excerpt: . . . this ground of hope is not extended. The Spirit needed. Finally, we need more than all else, the out-pouring of the Holy Spirit. And one object in alluding to this subject is to request the prayers of the people of God in our native land, in our behalf. We need this ourselves; to increase our love, strengthen our faith, quicken our zeal, and give more efficiency to our labors. It is needed for the conversion of our children. Our native helpers need it; to make them more conscientious, more earnest in love, more selfdenying, more anxious for the salvation of their countrymen and the honor of God. The usefulness of many would be increased, almost beyond calculation, by such an effusion of the Spirit as is now enjoyed in many places. Such a visitation, too, would cause many private Christians to become really and effectually preachers of the Gospel. It would root out from our churches the remnants of heathen feeling connected with the subject of caste, and implant humility and love. It would bring into the fold of Jesus, and convert into bright and shining lights, many members of our congregations who have no reasonable hope of heaven, and exert little if any influence. It would open the hearts of the people to contribute to the building of churches and the support of pastors and catechists, and the teachers of their children, to an extent heretofore unknown. It would convert many of the...
