HISTORY OF MEDICINE FROM THE SEVENTH TO THE FOURTEENTH CENTURY. THE ARABIAN ERA. In the preceding chapter the history of medical progress was traced from the time of Galen, the second century A. D., to the seventh century A. D. During that period the great Roman Empire had culminated in its greatness and divided into Eastern and Western Empires; and Rome, only a little before mistress of the world, had, under the repeated attacks of so-called Northern barbarians and the effect of internal dissensions, become little more than a heap of ruins. The Eastern Empire, with its capital at Constantinople, was still maintaining a semblance of power, though its downfall was rapidly approaching. During the same period the general aspect of medicine had undergone an equally radical change. The renowned school of Alexandria, with its library and museum, had been destroyed....
